NEW YORK, April 29.

TO THE PUBLIC.

In this critical posture of our national affairs, insulted and oppressed as we are by the detested tyrants of the ocean, I have considered it my duty to this community to inform them, that the common council have made an application to the President for a naval force. The following memorial was unanimously adopted and transmitted to the seat of government by this morning's mail.

TUNIS WORTMAN,
Clerk of the city and county of New York.

APRIL 28, 1806.

TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

The Memorial of the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the city of New York,

Respectfully sheweth,

That your memorialists repose full confidence in the wisdom and patriotism of the present administration of the United States. They are sensible that the general government is disposed to afford sufficient and adequate protection to every portion of the union.

A melancholy event has taken place.—This day consigns to the grave the remains of John Pierce, a fellow-citizen, inhumanly murdered by the British. Our port is blockaded; our vessels intercepted; our seamen impressed; our commerce interrupted, and our jurisdictional rights most grossly violated. A British squadron is now before our harbor, evincing a disposition to renew its outrages, and to perpetrate additional enormities.

We therefore respectfully request that a naval force may be immediately stationed at this port, and that three or more American frigates, may, without delay, be sent for our protection.

DE WITT CLINTON.
By order of Common Council.
T. WORTMAN,
City Clerk.

From the REGISTER.

We this day publish the most extraordinary document, that these extraordinary times have yet produced.

TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES,
The Memorial of the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the city of New York, &c

THAT DE Clinton, Mr. Wortman, and their worshipful associates, are at full liberty to proclaim their own inconsistencies, no one will pretend to deny. But, that these gentlemen should take occasion to connect the adulation of their political Idol with the public misfortune, is a stretch of concession, which the spirit of the nation, subdued and abased as it has been, may not be disposed to beam.

Whether the declaration of the worshipful gentlemen of "full confidence in the wisdom and patriotism of the present administration of the United States" which forms the introduction to this memorial was, as a biting sarcasm, intended to give point to the bitter reproaches, against the same administration, which constitute the residue of the remonstrance, we shall not undertake to determine; but, as citizens of the United States, suffering under the criminal improvidence of the administration in neglecting the navy of the United States, the sea-port towns, and their defences; and, as men, in whose ears the knell of a murdered fellow citizen is still sounding, we have the right to enquire with what propriety any man, or set of men, can declare their full confidence in the authors of these wrongs. Is it not enough that we are deeply injured, must we also be insulted by the fulsome praise of those to whom the grossest neglect of duty is, in the same breath, justly imputed? As to the prayer of the memorial that the president will send, WITHOUT DELAY, "three or more American frigates to raise the blockade," if it was not intended completely to unmask the administration, will most certainly produce that effect. For Mr. Jefferson could with equal facility send thirty sail of the line as he could, at this time, dispatch three or more American frigates to relieve the harbor of New York. How much he will be obliged to his worshipful friends, for compelling this disclosure of his nakedness, they may, by this time, be able to conjecture.

How fairlie both the corporation and the administration have been hit off in this memorial, a comparison of the introduction with the subsequent paragraphs, will clearly explain. It is shrewdly suspected that a certain factious alderman is the author; and, that political truths have not been suffered to stifle his love of fun!

From the United States Gazette.

To form a just estimate of the rulers of nations, we must examine the means which they possess, of doing good or eschewing evil. When the power centres in an individual, whether from actual physical force, or from popular sentiment, that individual is in a situation to execute every wise and benevolent plan, and to avoid every improper or impolitic measure. Such may be viewed as the situation of Bonaparte in Europe, surrounded and obeyed by armies which awe the world; and of Jefferson in America raised to supreme power and supported in it by the general popular voice. These men can do great good to the nations over which they preside. In the first the chief can execute his plans, and none will dare to withstand the execution. In the last, the moral influence of the man bears down all opposition. In the history of Rome we read of the deified Augustus, and in some future time our posterity may be told of the deified Jefferson, for certain it is, that no person in any age was ever more exalted by popular confidence.

It is the right use of power, whether obtained or maintained by force, or by the influence of general opinion, which gives an individual a claim on public gratitude, or entitles him to an honorable fame in future ages. From those who possess great means of doing good, great good will be expected; and if Bonaparte proves not a father to his people, he will be viewed as a detestable tyrant; so if Jefferson with his mighty power does not, like another Numa, in the infancy of our nation, lay the foundations of social order, strength and happiness on the immutable principles of nature, disappointed posterity will wonder at his strange exaltation and mourn its fatal consequences. His friends may say that he possessed not the power. His influence is too universally felt to admit such a plea. The legislature, not only of the nation, but the legislatures of the states bend to his will. He has only to speak, and his fiat is obeyed from one extremity of the continent to the other. His fame then must be measured by the right use he has made and shall make of this great preponderance.

It will be inquired, whether with a bold patriotic spirit, disdaining all personal consequences, he has sought the nation's happiness, its honor, and its permanent prosperity; or whether to a pusillanimous policy, and a timorous selfishness, he has sacrificed all that gives dignity to a nation, and colour to the life of man.

The ill effects of public measures are not always immediately felt it is time only which can gradually unfold their tendencies, and it is often only from the agonies of despair, and the sore afflictions of irremediable evils, that we discover the fatal errors of our rulers.

Short as has been the reign of Jefferson. Time that sincere and unerring monitor, begins to tell us that histories will not dwell upon his name with delight, nor enraptured posterity look up to him as a model of excellence and patriotism, worthy of emulation. We begin to feel the effects of his policy in a universal depression. In our foreign relations, his feebleness paralyses all enterprize. In our internal his want of dignity invites every consumely, and exults into action every licentious principle. He has made us contemptible in the eyes of nations and what is worse, has caused us to think meanly of ourselves. But it is not on these essential points, in which he has been palpably deficient, it is not from these causes that we now feel all the pressures which at present overwhelm our country. The effects of so mischievous a policy, would require a longer time for full developement. It goes gradually to the destruction of the nation. The evils which we immediately and most sorely feel have proceeded from certain financial operations, connected with the purchase of Louisiana. It was only by the extraordinary state of the world at a particular period, and by the reputation of our nation, at that time under Washington that it became the resort of men of enlightened minds, and great monied capital that in fact it became for a time the depository of the precious metals, and an entrepot of commerce. These advantages a wise government would have cherished; would rather have invested than banished capital. It would rather have concentered than scattered our industry. It would not have offered ways and means of sending the precious metals from us. It would not have offered premiums to individuals to quit the Atlantic states, who pay all the taxes, to waste their time in the wilderness of the west. It would not have depreciated our lands east of the mountains. It would not thus have impoverished those citizens who fill the treasury with its ample funds, under the specious pretext of taking the least possible sum from the mouth of labor. It would not have added to the evil by buying at an immense price, that which could have been more cheaply obtained in a different way. He would not have sent eleven millions of specie to Europe when a third of the sum spent in this country, might have accomplished the object, and would at the same time have invigorated our agriculture, our commerce, and our manufactures.

HAMILTON.

BY THIS DAY'S MAIL.

NEW YORK, April 30.

Last evening lieut. Coen, of the British ship Leander, with a flag of truce, arrived at Fort Jay.

We learn from Lieut. Coen, that the British ships off the Hook, were entirely unacquainted with the death of John Pierce, 'till Tuesday evening. The boat has come up to procure the release of two officers from their ship, whom they understand, are in confinement.

The two British ships of war at Sandy Hook received the news of their killing Mr. Pierce yesterday. They immediately hoisted signals for pilots; but none offering, they came to anchor outside the Hook. A short time after, the schooner Amicus, from Havanna, passed unnoticed within hail of them.

The brig Eliza, Burgess, for Havanna, went to sea yesterday, and was not boarded by the British blockading squadron off our harbor. The ship Ann, Fowler, for Hull, suffered a detention of about half an hour.

April 29, in lat. 40 long. 69, 40, spoke brig Merchant, 20 days from St. Vincents for Boston. Passenger, captain George Thomas, late master of the ship Charlotte Murdock, who returns his sincere thanks to captain Fredwell, for his polite and generous treatment. An Amsterdam paper of the 15th March states, that an American ship, supposed to be the Lexington, from Baltimore for Rotterdam, was ashore on the West Terchilling, but would probably be got off.

The brig Anna, Trowbridge, in 27 days from Guadaloupe, and 20 from Antigua, where she was carried in and detained three days. Sailed from Guadaloupe the 6th ultimo in company with the brig Rockland, for New York, and was captured in sight of her.

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.

In a former paper we mentioned a letter from a Boston captain in Leghorn, stating the polite treatment he had received from several British cruizers: the following is an extract from the letter alluded to:

"At the time of my sailing from Boston, there were reports that the British were daily capturing our vessels in and near the Mediterranean, as well as elsewhere. These reports occasioned great alarm; being bound hither, I was particularly affected and uneasy at them. As I approached the Straits I trembled at the sight of every sail. On passing the Gut, Dec. 29, I was spoken by a king's brig, but not boarded. The officer who hailed, asked me where I was from and where bound—and when told from Boston to Leghorn, wished me a pleasant passage and left me. The next day I was boarded by the frigate Euryalus; the officer treated me with the greatest politeness; and made his examination as brief as possible, for fear, as he said, of detaining me unnecessarily. The next was passed by three frigates, within half a mile, who shewed no inclination to molest me.

"January 1, fell in with a British fleet of 17 sail of men of war, and was boarded from a frigate, and informed it was admirals Collingwood's fleet; and that a Russian squadron of 6 ships of the line, was off Carthagena, watching 6 Spanish ships of the line which were ready for sea. I was boarded from three of Collingwood's fleet. The officer from the last vessel which boarded me, said, he knew, by the telegraphic signals which had been made from the vessel that previously met me where I was from and where bound, although that vessel was at least four miles off. January 2, was boarded from the cutter brig Scout, and again politely treated.—Thus did I receive good treatment on being boarded from several vessels, from the Britannia of 100 guns, down to the last mentioned brig. If they had been American ships I could not have had better usage. No paper was asked for, but my register and clearance; and no enquiry was made among my seamen what countrymen they were, or whether they had protection or not."

BALTIMORE, May 2.

Arrived, schooner Supply, Hollis, 24 days from Jacmel. Left there 8th April, schooner Henry, Holmes, of Boston uncertain; Swift, Davis, do. do.; Edith and Nancy, Champlin, do. in 2 or 3 days; a Danish schooner from St. Thomas. The ship Mary, Bunbury, of Baltimore, sailed about ten days before, for Aux Cayes and Jeremie. The sch'r Mohawk, from Baltimore, arrived At arquin, 1st April. The Mediator and Victory at the Cape. The ship Mount Vernon, of Philadelphia, was to sail from Port au Prince, for Jacmel in 10 or 12 days.

The ship Leander, Lewis, sailed for the South Main, 10 days before the Supply left there. Was chased by a French privateer, in lat. 18 on . 68, for 7 hours, escaped by superior sailing. Passed a large ship on Poplar Island, supposed to be the Diana from Liverpool.

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.

In a former paper we mentioned a letter om a Boston captain in Leghorn, stating e polite treatment he had received from veral British cruizers: the following is extract from the letter alluded to:

"At the time of my sailing from Bos-n, there were reports that the British ere daily capturing our vessels in and ar the Mediterranean, as well as else-here. These reports occasioned great arm; being bound hither, I was particurly affected and uneasy at them. As I pproached the Straits I trembled at the ght of every sail. On passing the Gut, ec. 29, I was spoken by a king's brig, but ot boarded. The officer who hailed, ask-d me where I was from and where bound and when told from Boston to Leghorn, ished me a pleasant passage and left me.
he next day I was boarded by the frigate uryalus; the officer treated me with the reatest politeness; and made his examinaion as brief as possible, for fear, as he aid, of detaining me unnecessarily. The ext was passed by three frigates, within alf a mile, who shewed no inclination to nolest me.

"January 1, fell in with a British fleet
f 17 sail of men of war, and was boarded rom a frigate, and informed it was admials Collingwood's fleet; and that a Rusian squadron of 6 ships of the line, was ff Carthagena, watching 6 Spanish ships f the line which were ready for sea. I was boarded from three of Collingwood's leet. The officer from the last vessel which boarded me, said, he knew, by the elegraphic signals which had been made rom the vessel that previously met me, where I was from and where bound, altho' that vessel was at least four miles off.
January 2, was boarded from the cutter
brig Scout, and again politely treated.—— Thus did I receive good treatment on being boarded from several vessels, from the Britannia of 100 guns, down to the last mentioned brig. If they had been American ships I could not have had better usage. No paper was asked for, but my register and clearance; and no enquiry was made among my seamen what countrymen they were, or whether they had protections or not."

BALTIMORE, May 2.

Arrived, schooner Supply, Hollis, 24 days from Jamel. Left there 8th April, schooner Henry, Holmes, of Boston uncertain; Swift, Davis, do. do.; Edith and Nancy, Champlin,
do. in 2 or 3 days; a Danish schooner from St.
Thomas. The ship Mary, Bunbury, of Baltimore, sailed about ten days before, for Aux Cayes and Jeremie. The sch'r Mohawk, from Baltimore, arrived At arquin, 1st April. The Monitor and Victory at the Cape. The ship Mount Vernon, of Philadelphia, was to sail from Port au-Prince, for Jacmel in 10 or 12 days.
The ship Leander, Lewis, sailed for the Spanish Main, 10 days before the Supply left there.
Was chased by a French privateer, in lat. 4 on . 68, for 7 hours, escaped by superior sailing.
Passed a large ship on Poplar Island, supposed to be the Diana from Liverpool.

COMMERCIAL NOTICES.

Liverpool, March 8.

Brown and low, middling Muscovado sugars have experienced a further decline at two public sales brought forward this week, at which low but pretty dry brown St. Lucie's went at 60s 6d a 62s up to 65s; for strong brown with some Jamaica's, of middling colours, but very soft, at 66s, and middling, 68s a 70, but good, middling and better qualities become more and more scarce, and sell higher; some more Havana sugars have gone off at moderate prices, although our principal holders decline selling at such; nothing doing in French clayed; the demand for coffee continues but partial, and ordinary qualities have declined a little, while better sort keeps steady; 170s has been obtained for one small parcel of fine middling Dominique, which does not, however, warrant our quoting general prices so high: the quantity remaining on hand is not now very considerable; prices of cocoa remain nearly nominal, no buyers; ginger and pimento are scarce articles, and the latter (bonded) has risen; rice also looks up. On Saturday, after our last went to press, about 400 puncheons rum were taken by a speculator, at the prices then quoted, and in some instances an advance was given, in consequence of which holders now require our present quotations, at which, however, very little has been done. Our cotton market has continued very brisk, and including what were sold last Saturday after our circular went to press nearly 6000 bags of all sorts have gone off this week, viz. Bourbons at 2s 1d and 2s 4d, Sea Island from 23d a 2s 1d for middling & pretty good old cotton up to 2s 3d a 2s 5d & 2s 6d for fine new qualities Pernambuccos 2s 1d. Bahias 23d. Maranhams 23d a 23 1-4d. Surrinam 23 1-4d. Demeraras 20d a 21d. and one lot at 23. Curracoas 23d. Grenadas and Carricas 10d. a 20d. Barbadoes 19 and 19 and 1-2d. Guadaloupes and St. Lucias 18d. Dominges ordinary 16d. and 17d. Tennessees 16d and Baweds 14d. a 14 1-2d to 15 1-2d. with 20 bags extra fine, at 16d. for a spinnet. Sea Islands, Pernambuccos, West Indies, and Boweds have been sold something low.

A little Jamaica logwood has gone off at 17*l* to 17*l* 10s. Campeachy under lock at 20*l*. Little doing in other dye woods. Some East India, Spanish, and Carolina indigoes are announced for public sale 18th instant, which may enable us to give more correct quotations than the limited quantity of late in this market has admitted of. No alteration in hides. Ashes being so scarce continue to look up. Ordinary qualities of tobacco, are rather lower this week, while better sorts support former prices. Turpentine go off pretty readily.

MR. JEFFERSON AND HIS PROTEGE.

We formerly noticed the nomination by the president to the senate, of a Mr. Hammond, to command the 2d regiment of infantry, in the service of the United States; we have now to state that, after an indignant discussion, the senate, by a most decisive vote of three to one, rejected the nomination.

It is for the friends of Mr. Jefferson to explain his motives, to this departure from the established rule of military succession, by attempting to appoint a person who was a stranger to the army, to a distinguished and important command, over the heads of all our meritorious field officers, captains, and subalterns—more especially as this identical Mr. Hammond had, in contravention of his allegiance and the neutrality of the United States, formerly accepted a military commission in the service of France, had inlisted soldiers for that service within the United States, and had actually committed hostilities against a neutral and friendly nation!

We rejoice, whatever the motives were, that the design has been arrested—and that the independent members of the senate, by a vote, which is equally honorable to their patriotism and personal characters, have vindicated the dignity of the United States, and the best interests of the service.

[Phil. Register.]

From the Frederick-Town Herald.

It must be recollected by every person that when the ruling party came into power they made a fine flourish about economy, and told us they would administer the government much better and much cheaper than their predecessors had done; and accordingly they repealed the internal taxes. It must also be recollected that they found about four millions of dollars in the treasury, and that they sold the federal navy and the bank stock of the nation for two or three millions more. With these immense sums, the fruits of federal policy, it is true, they were able to manage matters for sometime, but it did not and they knew at the time that they repealed the taxes that it would not last. Fortunately, we say fortunately as it regards our rulers, we were at war with Tripoli, for it was laid hold of as an apology for imposing a new tax. This tax, which was for wise reasons, called the Mediterranean fund, consisted of an additional duty of two and an half per cent. on certain imported articles, and was to cease on the conclusion of peace with Tripoli. But peace with Tripoli has been concluded several months and the tax is still continued. The reader will no doubt wish to know for what purpose it is now continued—It is to enable Mr. Jefferson to pay Monsieur Bonaparte two millions more to let Spain and the United States settle their differences. For the present apology for so doing, he is referred to the poor, pitiful, whining message of the President to Congress on the 14th ult. which will be found in our present number. In these appears that the Tunisian Ambassador, no doubt having observed, the readiness with which the demands of Bonaparte were complied with, has thought proper not to be contended with having got all he had at first required, but after having cost the nation 200 dollars a week for four or five months, has made a further demand. This Mr. Jefferson has quite spiritedly refused & very judiciously seized this circumstance as a reason for continuing this tax which he has advised Congress to do, and which they have accordingly done.

From the Port Folio.

Mr. Oldschool,

The amiable and beloved object of the annexed jeu-de-esprit, who feels emotions with ten times the poignancy of ordinary mortals, on parting with the author, gave him a few exquisite lines which ended with "Forget me not."

To Miss M. A.

Then doth my girl awake her lyre,
And ask with true poetic fire,
Whether, through times oblivious age,
By folly led, or wisdom's page,
Her HENRY would forget her?

Oh! could I from my bosom tear,
My constant heart would quick declare,
How oft thy dear angelic form
Hath tranquilised the raging storm,
Sooth'd the wrinkled front of care,
And calm the horrors of despair.

How oft, when misery oppress'd,
Or cold neglect my soul depress'd,
Methought I saw thy bosom glow,
And sympathise in Henry's woe,

How oft, when wandering thro' the wild,
Thy fleeting form my time beguil'd,
Amid the dark impervious woods,
Or ploughing thro' the angry floods,
Methought I heard my love exclaim,
"Forget me not!——We meet again."

How oft some rustic blue-eyed maid
Luxuriant every charm display'd;
And, glowing with impetuous fire,
Tried all the arts which love inspire,
To kindle me with fond desire!
Thy voice electric through me shot,
And breath'd aloud,——"Forget me not!"

Forget thee!——No—by Heav'n I swear,
That while I breathe the vital air,
Whether a beggar or a king,
Drunk with love I'll wildly sing,
Till death shall point his barbed dart,
And pierce my fond expiring heart!

Twenty Dollars Reward,

WILL be given for apprehending and ſecuring in jail, a young mulatto man ſlave, named ANDREW. He was hired by me laſt year to Mr. Joſeph Thomas, who keeps the middle ferry, oppoſite to Alexandria, and abſconded from that place about the latter end of Auguſt laſt. He is about 23 years of age, 5 feet 8 or 9 inches high, luſty and well made, has ſhort curled hair, and is frequently ſubject to have ſeveral large pimples in his face. He is reckoned to be a ſenſible fellow, of an eaſy agreeable addreſs for a man in his law ſphere of life. As he has not been heard of by me ſince his elopement, I ſuſpect he has had the addreſs to ſhip himſelf as a freeman on board ſome veſſel either at Alexandria or Baltimore. Whoever takes him up and ſecures him in any jail, ſhall receive from me the above reward, as ſoon as due information thereof is given to me or to Doctor N. P. Cauſin, at Port Tobacco.

Will ſtand at Arlington, a mile and an half from George Town ferry, and be let to Mares at the very low price of Twenty Shillings, and twenty-five cents to the groom—or One Barrel of Corn, if paid by the firſt of Auguſt—if not, Five Dollars, and fifty cents to the groom, will be the amount.

POTOMAC is a coal black, of great ſize and beauty, 15 and an half hands high, and a form not to be exceeded. He ſtands at this very low price for two years only, that his breed may be extended to prove his value. He is as high a bred horſe as any in the world, as the annexed certificate ſhews.

☞ I do hereby certify, that the black colt Potomac was bred by me and foaled in the ſpring of 1799. His ſire was my horſe Chatham, and Chatham was got by Col. Thomas Mann Randolph's Laburnum, out of my favorite mare Iſabella, and both deſcended from Col. John Baylor's famous Old Fearnought and the imported dam of Apollo. From a variety of croſſes I conſider Potomac to be as high a bred horſe as any in America.
